Bankside Pier opens

Environment Secretary John Prescott took just five minutes to travel downstream by water from Westminster when he visited Bankside to open its new pier in front of Shakespeare's Globe Theatre. The vessel was a prototype ferry expected to become a familiar sight on a Battersea Charing Cross-Bankside-Dome route in time for the Millennium year.

Cuba in Waterloo

Cubana, a taste of Cuba, has opened in Lower Marsh. The corner building, opposite La Barca restaurant and once an off-licence, is a venture by former government minister Phillip Oppenheim who had a hands-on role during the bar's opening last month when the temperature in SE1 was suitably Cuban.

Old Vic re-opens for summer

181 year old theatre welcomes The Iceman Cometh from the Almeida

The Old Vic has re-opened for the summer with the legendary French mime artist Marcel Marceau in his new show The Bowler Hat.

The 181 year old theatre had been dark ever since being put up for sale last year by its Canadian owner Ed Mervish. But the surprise opening of the Bowler Hat, brought to The Cut by Bill Kenwright for an early summer season, means that gloom about the famous theatre's future has been at least temporarily lifted.

Transferring to the Old Vic later this month from Islington's

Almeida is Howard Davies' critically acclaimed production of The Iceman Cometh. Eugene O'Neill's bar room drama has a 19 strong cast including Kevin Spacey whose performance has been described by The Guardian as "simply electrifying" in "a superlative production".

The cast for the six week run at the Old Vic will also include Patrick Godfrey and Tim Piggott-Smith. The Iceman Cometh was playing to capacity audiences up to its last performance at the Spring Bank Holiday weekend.

Hanging Hanratty

The Bootleg Theatre Company has arrived at the Union Theatre in Union Street with Michael Burnham's Hanging Hanratty. The again topical Hanratty case is, like the younger Lucan mystery, often back in the news. Now, as the newly-formed Criminal Cases Review Commission decides whether to refer the matter to the Court of Appeal, this play is making the news itself. Hanratty case expert Sir Ludovic Kennedy describes David Taylor's production as "impressive" and campaigner Jeremy Fox calls it "superb". Other plaudits picked up on the provincial tour include "gripping" (Wiltshire Sound) and "provocative and disturbing" (Belfast Telegraph). Did James Hanratty commit murder? His brother Michael says: "I am glad it is being shown. It's a pretty good play and very near to the mark."

Coin Street Festival

Coin Street Festival

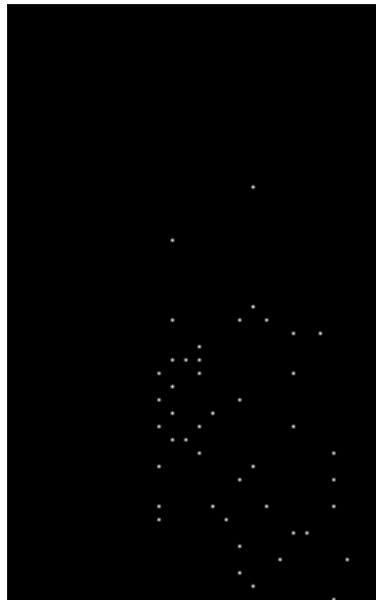

'A festival for everyone and all events free' might be the slogan for the now annual three month Coin Street Festival in and around Bernie Spain Gardens alongside Oxo Wharf.

The Festival is managed by Coin Street Community Builders which works "to make the South Bank a better place to live, work and visit".

Windrush Music

This month's big event is on Sunday 7 June which will be a Windrush day in Bernie Spain Gardens and on Gabriel's Wharf. 50 years ago this month 492 Jamaicans landed downstream at Tilbury in the ex-troopship Windrush. From the Caribbean have come sounds that changed the UK music scene.

To celebrate the impact there is a stunning music programme including Jamaican jazz tenor sax player Andy Hamilton playing with the Blue

Notes.

The five hour event begins at 2pm. There will be plenty of Caribbean food and drink. Also planned are workshops with steel pan drumming and banner-making.

Filipino Fun

Two weeks later on Sunday 21 June the same venue hosts the Philippine Centennial Fiesta celebrating 100 years of Philippine independence. The centenary event from 1pm to 7pm is being held in association with Philippine Islands Connections travel company and Filipinos Abroad Magazine.

Non stop musical entertainment will follow the colourful pageant with groups in vibrant traditional costume. The 30 strong Ballet Philippines, Lahing Kayumanangi, will perform traditional music and dance. The original cast of Miss Saigon are due to perform a selection of West End musical numbers.

An historical fashion show will demonstrate the evolution of Filipino fashion. There will also be a Filipino art show, food and opportunities to join in dance and drumming.

Commonwealth Fun

The Standard Chartered Bank is sponsoring a fundraising fun run on Thursday 25 June in Bernie Spain Gardens to help British Athletes. The fun starts at 6.30pm.

Firemen's Chilli

Teams of London firemen will be on the South Bank riverside on Saturday afternoon 27 June preparing chilli. There will be free music and a chance to sample the food. All takings will go to the Fire Services National Benevolent Fund.

Book Review

Blue Guide

Over 20 pages are devoted to the SE1 area in the latest London Blue Guide (Black Norton; £14.99). The author is Swedish born Ylva French who tends to know more about London than those born here. Ylva once had an office on Vauxhall so it's hard to find a mistake in her two SE1 chapters. She appears up to date on every recent development as well as those pending such as the IMAX Cinema and Vinopolis. Already The Cut's Livebait and Meson Don Felipe qualify for a Blue Guide mention. The Thames section suggests a four mile circular walk from Waterloo Bridge by way of Tower Bridge which takes in a staggering number of famous landmarks. This is a thoroughly researched guidebook as you should expect from an author who once worked for the London Tourist Board.

Exhibition Review

Not the Royal Academy!

Where do artists rejected by the mysterious Summer Exhibition selection process at the Royal Academy of Arts go? They come straight to SE1 where the Llewellyn Alexander Gallery hang the best in its annual Salon des Refusés known as Not the Royal Academy. The gallery (opposite the Old Vic) offers a constantly changing exhibition of over 1200 pictures -around 400 more than the official show in Piccadilly. In contrast to the real Royal Academy exhibition, admission is free. This year is the eighth show and six per cent of every sale goes to the Hallé Orchestra Appeal.

A Virtual Garden

Which museum in SE1 offers tours from the comfort of your living room? Amongst the delights on offer at the Museum of Garden History's florally-decorated web site is a Virtual Visit, taking you in turn round the main areas of the Museum. The story behind the museum, housed in the redundant church of St Mary at Lambeth, is told along with that of the two John Tradescants, gardeners to Charles I and Charles II, buried in the churchyard. There is also a good selection of links to garden web sites, and other practical information such as a programme of events.

Eating Out

The Global View

The best view of St Paul's from Bankside, with Canary Wharf seen to the east, is from the simple room in an Inigo Jones design building alongside the Globe. Dishes in this Milburns restaurant specialising in grill are interesting. Two courses with cafetière coffee can be less than £20 a head. Vegetables are carefully cooked. Regular desserts include toffee apple pudding with cinnamon ice cream (£4.50). Good cheeseboard. Service is not rushed even during a quiet winter lunchtime so plenty of time to enjoy view and watch the tide rising or falling and boats passing a second time.

- The Globe Restaurant, New Globe Walk, Bankside
- Lunch 12 noon to 2.30pm
- Dinner 5.30pm to 11pm
- 0171 928 9444

Ian Allan Books

The Ian Allan Transport Bookshop in Lower Marsh, appropriately just behind Waterloo Station, is one of SE1's specialist shops which brings visitors into the area. The long window shop is packed with history books giving minute details on lost trolley bus networks in provincial towns as well London Transport's world famous heritage. Those unable to get to Blackpool for its tram centenary will find all the souvenir books here along with the video. Shipping and aviation matters are also covered in detail. But don't think that this is just a transport enthusiasts' shop as there are also books from Ian Allan imprint Dial House, as well as walks books.

Music Matters

Open Churches

The choir and orchestra of St John's Smith Square are crossing the river from Westminster on Tuesday evening 23 June to give a concert at Southwark Cathedral in aid of the Open Churches Trust. Under conductor Oliver Gilmour they will be performing Mendelssohn's Symphony No 5 'Reformation' and Mozart's Ave Verum Corpus K618 and Requiem K626. Also performing will be Mary-Louise Aitken (soprano), Christine Cairns (mezzo-soprano), Joseph Cornwell (tenor) and Konrad Jarnot (bass). The Open Churches Trust, a charity founded by Lord Lloyd-Webber, provides funds to enable historic churches to continue to be open on weekdays to casual visitors. One is St James-the-Less, an important GE Street church, just across Vauxhall Bridge. Among those once associated with St James's is the actress Dame Sybil Thorndike.

Church Focus

Holy Trinity Dockhead

Sunday 7 June is Trinity Sunday and the patronal festival of Holy Trinity Dockhead, the Roman Catholic church behind St Saviour's Dock. The present polychromatic brick building designed by HS Goodhart-Rendel and completed in 1959)(the year of his death) has a hint of the Victorian architect William Butterfield. This is apt for the building replaces an 1834 gothic church destroyed in the war along with the presbytery and a Pugin (of wallpaper fame) designed convent. This was the first Roman Catholic church since the Reformation to be built fronting a public highway. The main road once ran to the north of the church - hence today's strangely long bleak wall here. The very old days are recalled with a 12th-century stone found on the site of nearby Bermondsey Abbey.
