Vinopolis arrives in London's Larder

A two and a half acre 'wine town' is set to open this month near Borough Market

Vinopolis—City of Wine promises a “world tour” through twenty themed rooms from the remains of a Roman wine store to a bubble clad lift taking visitors to Champagne. This “adult-only entertainment for wine lovers” includes a ride on a Vespa through an Italian landscape and a simulated air flight over an Australian vineyard. You will have to “climb the Andes” to get from Chile to Argentina.

All this is being put together under the railway arches between Park Street and Stoney Street. Wine writer Hugh Johnson says: “I cannot think of a better place to enjoy all the pleasures of wine than the extraordinary arches of Vinopolis.”

Other wine experts advising Vinopolis include Oz Clarke who says that Vinopolis will be “a great place to entertain”.

The official launch of the project is on Thursday 22 July at Vintners’ Hall on the north end of Southwark Bridge where Ambassadors from wine producing countries will be welcomed. Later in the day guests will process to Bankside where Culture Secretary Chris Smith is expected to formally open Vinopolis. The public will be admitted from 10am the following day. The entrance is at Bank End and admission will cost £10.

Meanwhile the vast size of the complex—the largest new attraction to open in the capital this year—is causing some anxiety among nearby residents as the huge banqueting areas are expected to mean large numbers of people arriving and leaving in the evenings. Already the London Tourist Board is planning to host a 600 strong party there ahead of the opening. •Tickets can be booked on-line at www.evinopolis.com

Beachcombing with the Tate

American artist Mark Dion, who blurs the line between artist and scientist, is beachcombing the Thames shoreline both at Millbank and Bankside.

The finds from these searches on beaches in front of the two Tate Galleries will be examined and classified by local volunteers on the south lawn of the Bankside Tate for a month from 19 July. The public are to be allowed to watch the work in progress.

The project will culminate in an Art Now display at the Tate Gallery at Millbank next winter.

Early finds include animal teeth and claws, 100 year old porcelain and a fridge magnet.

Entrapment

Entrapment, starring Sean Connery and Catherine Zeta-Jones, is now released. The film is set in New York, Kuala Lumpur and SE1. One of the promised “grey London streets” is Park Street and there are river scenes at Lambeth and the Millennium Dome.

Theatre Review

Julius Caesar at the Globe

First performed at the Globe in June 1599, Julius Caesar opened the 1999 season. The text is spoken with great clarity and energy, allowing the humour and savagery to emerge. The staging with actors wearing Elizabethan dress covered by togas for dramatic effect, and the plebian crowd clothed in jeans and baseball caps emphasises the timeless and contemporary quality of the debate over violence, power and deadly rivalry. Caesar (Paul Shelley) sadly lacks the necessary imperial qualities to provoke the conspirators but Brutus (Danny Sapani), Cassius (Richard Bremner) and Mark Antony (Mark Lewis Jones) delight, as do the musical interludes and final jig.

Millennium Events/Festivals • 1999 – 2000 Grant Aid

Participate in Southwark's Millennium Events!

Are you a community or voluntary based organisation within the Borough of Southwark?

Are you thinking or planning to organise a community event to celebrate the coming of the new millennium during 1st January – 31st December 2000?

Education & Leisure, Community Services Section, have organised 3 separate Millennium Grants programmes (maximum £500 per application) to enable the local organisations to participate in Millennium events. These are:

- Coming of the Millennium • Closing date for application is 30 September 1999
- Enjoying the Millennium • Closing date for application is 28 February 2000
- Celebrating Cultural Diversity in Southwark's 'World Village' • Closing date for application is 28 February 2000

Why not apply for a grant to contribute towards the cost of the event/festival during the Millennium year.

Please contact: Josephine Adeyinka, Education & Leisure, Community Services Section, Tel: 0171 525 1592

BOOK AWARD

Len Reilly's book Southwark: An Illustrated History has won the 1999 Alan Ball Local History Award. The prize, awarded by a Library Association judges panel, is for the best book published by a local authority. The author is the Southwark Local Studies Librarian and a popular lecturer. The book, reviewed in last month's in SE1, is available from the library in Borough High Street.

NORTHERN LINE

The Bank branch of the Northern Line south of Moorgate will be closed from Saturday 3 July until early September. This means that Borough Station will be closed during the two month maintenance period. There are plans to increase the bus service including the 133 route. The Jubilee Line is due to reach SE1 late this summer. See www.londontransport.co.uk/northern

EURO STAMP

The Post Office has filmed a commercial in Borough Market. This is part of the promotion of the new Euro stamp covering the standard 30p postal rate to 54 European countries from Albania to Uzbekistan. The new stamp just bears the Queen's head and a capital E denoting Europe at its bottom left hand corner.

Shoemaker's Holiday returns to SE1

The Shoemaker's Holiday is again being performed in Southwark exactly 400 years after its première at the Rose Theatre.

The venue this time for Thomas Dekker's play The Shoemaker's Holiday is Southwark Playhouse in Southwark Bridge Road. The rumbustious comedy follows the career of Simon Eyre, the mad shoemaker of Tower Street, and his rise to become Lord Mayor of London. The play is said to be a timely tale since today there is the contest to be Mayor of London at the nearby Tooley Street GLA building.

The Troupe Theatre Company production is directed by Simon Purse and has a thirteen strong cast. Troupe has performed at Hampton Court, Lincoln's Inn and Shakespeare's Globe.

All tickets are just £3 on Mondays 5 and 12 July. See listing page 2 for other prices and times.

•Meanwhile the Globe is repeating its July 1599 bill by staging Julius Caesar.

Thameslink 2000 exhibitions

Railtrack is staging a display ahead of an expected autumn announcement about the widening of the railway track between Blackfriars Bridge and London Bridge. The line carries Thameslink trains and extensive work is planned in Borough Market where the historic residential area could be lost. Meanwhile Railtrack has modified by five metres its controversial plan to build a canopy over Blackfriars Railway Bridge. An exhibition caravan will be in Hopton Street on Thursday 1 and Friday 2 July and in Borough Market daily from Tuesday 6 to Saturday 10 July. The final opportunity to view the Thameslink 2000 plans is at London Bridge Station on Thursday 15 and Friday 16 July.

Changes in The Cut

There are more changes in The Cut where the long empty site next to Southwark College has just opened as the TAS Restaurant. A Mediterranean menu offers a £6.45 set lunch. Almost next door is a new dry cleaners Clean Cut which has been widely welcomed by residents and Waterloo commuters.

Tudor rubbish dump found on GLA building site

Work on the site of the Greater London Authority building next to Potters Fields has revealed a rich Tudor rubbish dump. The greatest find is a banana skin which suggests that the fruit may have been landed on Hay's Wharf several centuries earlier than previously believed.

The items have been preserved due to the site being a waterlogged former fish farm rather than a dry field. Pottery tankards and a bottle in a basket may have come from one of the Southwark taverns or a riverside house. The archaeologists are staging a small display of finds, including the banana, at the Museum of London in the City.

•Details of the excavations can be found in the Archaeology section of the Museum of London Web site at www.museum-london.org.uk

Book Review

Bermondsey & Rotherhithe

Standing out among the Docklands books at the Shad Thames Riverside Bookshop is Peter Marcan's fascinating Bermondsey and Rotherhithe

Perceived. Without this well illustrated book about the past it is impossible for many to appreciate the present riverside. This is the second edition of a very personal view of east SE1. Recalled are the factories of Jacob's and Peek Frean's biscuits, Sarson's vinegar and Hartley's jams (in Tower Bridge Road) and Crosse & Blackwell. The Queen Elizabeth Street dray horse lowered by helicopter in 1987 is all part of what the author calls Docklands Reinvented.

Peugeot Design Awards

London's self-styled "leading centre for contemporary design" is a fitting venue for an exhibition of sixty shortlisted entries from this year's Peugeot Design Awards. Some readers may recall the launch of the Peugeot 206 at the.gallery@oxo last year which marked the start of an ongoing Peugeot-Oxo Tower partnership. Items on display include a "mind the gap" coffee table from Southwark-based design partnership El Ultimo Grito, while the rights to Lionel Dean's Lampadina have been bought by IKEA for retail in the UK.

Vinopolis on the Web

Vinopolis - City of Wine, which opens this month, will undoubtedly have a dramatic effect upon the Bankside and Borough Market areas. Its new Web site is elegantly designed and is full of subtle animations. One section of the site gives details of the visitor attraction and includes on-line booking with Ticketmaster, whilst another set of pages explains the various corporate hospitality opportunities available in the complex. A clickable map leads to detailed descriptions of the main spaces available for hire.

Eating Out

Refectory food tradition

Southwark Cathedral began as a monastery and still runs a refectory which since February has been known as the Petit Café since it's now an off-shoot of nearby Petit Robert. A two course lunch including a glass of wine is £8.95. There is always a home made soup such as celery and sometimes smoked salmon salad on the menu for a starter. It is table service which is unusual for a cathedral café today. Main courses can include cumberland sausage, cannelloni, lemon sole or sweet and sour Quorn stir fry.

Shop Focus

Holland Street's art bookshop

The new art book shop opposite Falcon Point is the first sign of the magnet effect that Bankside's new Tate Gallery of Modern Art will have in coming years. Like the Bankside Gallery across the road it once existed north of the river. This specialist shop where you might find that long sought out of print exhibition catalogue also stocks modern British art books, art reference books, catalogues, avant-garde documentation and surrealism.

Music Matters

Watch this Space at the National

Following last year's very successful outdoor riverside music and theatre festival in the new National Theatre piazza, Watch this Space offers a summer season of free outdoor performance. There is something every day Tuesday to Saturday with a mix of lunchtime and evening events. Music in the Square is every Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening. Other events include another chance to see the Albert and Friends Instant Circus if you miss them at Summer in the Pool. On Saturday 24 July there is a special World Music in the Square day with big bands and international sounds. Watch this Space continues until 4 September.
