Pull Out All The Stops

BBC Radio 3 will take up residence on the South Bank this month as part of a festival to mark the restoration of the Royal Festival Hall organ.

For two weeks from Saturday 15 March many of Radio 3's regular live shows will come from a pop-up radio studio in the RFH's Riverside Cafe.

The partnership will see 15 live concerts and three world premieres broadcast on Radio 3.

The opening gala concert on 18 March features organists John Scott, Isabelle Demers, Jane Parker Smith and David Goode with trumpeter Alison Balsom and the brass sections from Southbank Centre's resident orchestras the Philharmonia Orchestra and London Philharmonic Orchestra.

An exhibition in the Clore Ballroom tells the story of the RFH organ.

Art at the cathedral

For the third year Southwark Cathedral will have an artistic focus to its observance of the Lent season which begins on Ash Wednesday 5 March.

Edmund de Waal's piece, another hour, consists of twelve free-standing vitrines, each nearly 7 ft high and holding a single white porcelain vessel. They will stand in a serpentine line in the retrochoir at the east end of the Cathedral.

Angela Wright's piece is entitled 40 days and is made from spun wool. It will be suspended below the east window of the cathedral, a drop of some 50 ft, covering the altar screen.

"We are delighted that we will have two art works – another hour and 40 days – to accompany our journey from Lent to Holy Week and Easter," said the Very Revd Andrew Nunn, Dean of Southwark.

"These events in the life of Jesus are lived almost in real time by the Christian community and especially in the final week before Easter."

"The encounter with the Living God is both in time and eternity and both of these works will help us to enter more deeply into this mystery and reality."

Lower Marsh Saturday Market

A new weekly food market is to launch in Waterloo from Saturday 1 March.

"Local people have told us how much they want to have the opportunity to buy more fresh produce in Waterloo and we think that the new Lower Marsh Saturday Market will really deliver on this," said Helen Santer of Waterloo Quarter BID.

"This is a cracking little street with great independent shops and the new market will give people even more reason to visit."

The new Saturday market will be open from 10am to 3pm.

Products expected to be on offer include biodynamic fruit and vegetables from Brambletye Farm, award-winning meats from Boarstall Meats, artisanal charcuterie from Cannon & Cannon, bread, cakes and desserts from HMP Brixton's Bad Boys Bakery and traditional Italian foods from the husband and wife team behind The Seriously Italian Company.

This month in briefOpen Streets Southwark

The organisers of a one-day event that will see Southwark Street and Blackfriars Road closed to motor traffic have appealed for local residents to get involved. Open Streets Southwark will be held on Saturday 14 June in Southwark Street and Blackfriars Road. For five hours, two of Bankside's busiest roads will be a car and bus-free zone. Organisers want to hear from from SE1 residents who might be interesting in stewarding or other roles.

Queen at Rambert

On Friday 21 March the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will visit the South Bank for the official opening of dance company Rambert's new headquarters on Upper Ground.

Great Daffodil Appeal

Marie Curie's Great Daffodil Appeal is launching in London on Saturday 1 March. The charity is asking local people to make a donation and wear a daffodil pin to support people with terminal illnesses. Collections will be held at London Bridge Railway Station on Friday 7 March, the tube station on Saturday 15 March and Tesco Old Kent Road on Friday 20 & Saturday 21 March. There will also be a street collection in Bermondsey on Saturday 15 March.

London Bridge works

Between Friday 28 and Sunday 30 March, engineers will work round the clock to bring platforms 14 and 15 at London Bridge back into service. Over the same weekend, platforms 12 and 13 will be taken out of use so work can start to rebuild and reposition them, part of a five-year programme of work which will see the station completely rebuilt in phases working from the south side to the north. There will be significant changes to Southern services following the morning peak at London Bridge on Friday 28 March and no Southern services will operate into London Bridge on Saturday 29 and Sunday 30 March.

Lower Marsh floristry stall

Kelly Newton's flower stall in Lower Marsh is being sponsored by Waterloo estate agents Frank Harris. Frank Harris is keen to see the market prosper and Kelly now finds herself providing flowers for houses both for sale and to welcome incoming owners. The new residents receive vouchers to exchange at the stall so immediately get to know their local market.

WWF Earth Hour

Oxo Tower Wharf is taking part in WWF's Earth Hour. On Saturday 29 March between 8pm and 9pm the famous O X and O will be turned off.

Southwark stories wanted

A Friend of a Friend Productions has been commissioned by Southwark Council to bring new writing to Blackfriars Road as part of the MERGE Festival. This autumn the company will be presenting short plays recounting stories from local residents and those who work in the area, bringing to life the past and present of Blackfriars and Southwark. Scripts and ideas from local people are invited.

Older Adults Wellbeing Group

WPF Therapy near London Bridge is running a 10-week group programme for local people aged 65+ offering a supportive space to share experiences and concerns, meet other people, work on difficult issues and learn new skills and coping strategies to improve wellbeing. The Monday morning sessions are free to attend. Details from 020 7378 2002 or therapy@wpf.org.uk

Wonderful Women of Waterloo

This one-day course at Morley College - timed to coincide with International Women's Day - investigates the lives of women who played an important role in shaping the social landscape of Bankside in education, housing, the arts and sports. Learn about the lives of women who lived and worked in the area as Winchester Geese, in the leather and hat making industries and more recently in the factories around Bermondsey and Southwark. The morning session will be classroom based and look at the history of women working in the area and the afternoon session will be a walk around the area. The course takes place on Thursday 6 and Saturday 8 March. For details of booking arrangements and fees, see www.morleycollege.ac.uk

THE BIG SWAP

12 noon-2pm; free

If you can't quite bring yourself to take that slightly-too-small jumper to the charity shop but you're too lazy for eBay then gather the clothes, books and DVDs you're bored with and swap them for (nearly) new things at The Big Swap. Not only will you be refreshing your wardrobe and saving your old things from landfill, you'll be reducing the use of new materials, picking up a bargain (free stuff!), finding a new read or doing some re-gifting. The more you bring to swap the more items you can pick up. Donations are also welcome which will be passed on to local charity Foundation 66. The swap will take place alongside the weekly London Bridge Farmers' Market. Forster (49 Southwark Street) will be accepting swap items between 9am and 6pm Monday-Friday until Monday 4 March for anyone who'd like to drop off swap items ahead of time. A Team London Bridge Climate Week event.

NEW CANCER CENTRE AT GUY'S: DROP-IN EVENT

Robens Suite, Tower Wing; 5pm-7pm; free

An innovative new Cancer Centre is under construction at Guy's Hospital. Patients, staff and the local community have helped design different aspects of the building, from the way that care is organised to improved facilities, and to support world class research into new treatments. An art strategy has been developed to support the healing environment. The centre will open in 2016. This drop-in event is a chance to meet the project team, staff from building contractors Laing O'Rourke, the artists invited to create artworks and patients who have been involved through the user groups. A representative from Museum of London Archaeology will bring along some of the artefacts that were unearthed from the site.

THE FLIPPING MARVELLOUS SE1 CHARITY PANCAKE RACE

12.30pm-1.30pm

The Winter Olympics may have come to a close but local theatre company London Bubble is keeping the sporting spirit alive in More London this Shrove Tuesday. The race aims to raise money by bringing together local organisations to indulge in a batter based competition. The event is a Team London Bridge and London Bubble Theatre initiative in aid of LB+, a creative training programme for young people. LB+ uses a theatre-based approach to raise aspirations and build life skills. Bubble's award winning programme has seen 93 per cent of graduates go on to employment or further education. Organisations in the SE1 area have been invited to enter teams of 5 people to hunt, gather and flip their way around More London in a unique event. A young person from LB+ will join each team as part of the programme's aim to develop an innovative model of corporate engagement. Everyone is welcome to cheer on the teams. film explores the relationship between Caribbean and English World War Two service men and women against the backdrop of war. During the Second World War black people from across the British Empire enthusiastically joined the army, navy, and Royal Air Force and played their part in fighting Nazi Germany and its allies. In the air, at sea, and on land they risked their lives, yet very little attention has been given to the thousands of black service men and women who supported the war effort. This hour-long film tries to set that record straight by documenting the real life experiences of 13 such unsung heroes.

Lecture Theatre 1; 6.30pm-8.30pm; free; book at www.kcl.ac.uk/feedyourmind
Working with King's gastroenterologists, Sam Bompas and Harry Parr present a voyage to the centre of the gut. Following a short introduction on the medical practice of endoscopy and gastroenterology the presenter will swallow a SynMed pill-cam. This will stream footage from within as the camera moves along the alimentary canal. The resulting footage will be used to illustrate a volume of Memoirs of a Stomach - an obscure 1852 diet book told from the perspective of a stomach. The art book combining scans of the volume with contemporary gastroenterological photography will be distributed through selected bookshops in October. Each participant in the event will receive a copy of a book which opens with the view from their own tongue. Part of Feed Your Mind: the King's Festival of Food and Ideas.

Starts 2pm at Tabard Street Piazza next to St George the Martyr Church (please arrive 15 minutes before departure; £9 (conc £8); booking advised) www.southwarkmysteries.co.uk

Local history vividly brought to life on these guided walks with writer-performer John Constable, author of The Southwark Mysteries and Secret Bankside. For centuries, what was forbidden in the City was permitted south of the river in the 'Liberty' around the Clink prison. Take a walk around this 'Outlaw Borough' of taverns, bear-pits, theatres and 'stews', where women of the world's oldest profession were licensed by the Bishop of Winchester, yet buried in unconsecrated ground. Here too, Shakespeare's theatre was born.

THE VELVETEEN RABBIT

Times vary; £16 (conc £13)

Unicorn's Artistic Director Purni Morell directs Margery Williams' timeless classic in a large-scale stage adaptation for the whole family. This magical and moving story examines how toys and people, come alive through the wisdom and experience of love. The Velveteen Rabbit tells the story of a little boy and a very shy toy rabbit who longs for nothing more than to be loved and become real. He spends his days waiting patiently on the nursery floor, watching the boy play with the other toys and dreaming of the day he'll be picked up again. Written in 1922 by London born Margery Williams, The Velveteen Rabbit is one of the most popular books for children in the United States. Several film adaptations have been made and the much loved story is frequently staged in theatres across America where it continues to be on the Teachers' Top 100 Books for Children. Its popularity has also spread to the UK with numerous celebrities, including Helena Bonham Carter, claiming it to be their favourite book.

BUNKER GIRLS

Tue-Sat 7.30pm; Sun 4pm; £15 (conc £13)

Michael Punter's play is about Hitler's secretaries during the last days of World War II. Gathered in the bunker, with the Russian armies closing in, two women reflect upon their lives with the Führer, recriminate with each other and, finally, plan a daring escape. Part black comedy and part thriller, Bunker Girls takes its audience into the tense and dramatic world of the Third Reich's final moments, shifting between the recruitment of the secretaries in 1941 and the playing out of the endgame in Berlin in May 1945. The play stars Suzanne Kendall and Victoria Johnston as secretaries Ilse and Gretel. The voice of Tom Goodman-Hill, from ITV's Mr Selfridge, also features throughout the performance. The director is Christine Kimberley.

THE OPTIMISTS OF NINE ELMS: COMMUNITY FILM CLUB

Star Auditorium; 7pm refreshments from 6.30pm; free to members

A rare showing of Peter Sellers' 1973 film. Referred to by Sellers' biographer as a 'masterpiece', 'a cult oddity' and his 'greatest performance', Sellers plays Sam, a street musician who dreams of music hall stars and befriends two slum children. Music credits include Lionel Bart and George Martin. Today Nine Elms - from Vauxhall to the revamped Battersea Power Station, is one large development site that will include a relocated US embassy and a Frank Gehry building. The film provides a breathtaking insight into what the riverside boroughs looked like 40 years ago. To join the Community Film Club, email communityfilmclub@tate.org.uk or call 020 7401 5176. Membership is open to those living in Southwark and Lambeth.

THE HOSPITAL IN THE OATFIELD: THE ART OF NURSING IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR

The Florence Nightingale Museum marks the centenary of the First World War with a special exhibition honouring the inspirational work of nurses in war-torn France. The exhibition centres on a series of ten remarkable paintings by Victor Tardieu of the field hospital run by the Society beauty, Millicent, Duchess of Sutherland. Never before displayed in public, the paintings capture a moment of tranquility and transformation amid the turmoil of the First World War. Funded by the Heritage Lottery Fund, the exhibition explores the crucial role played by women in the battlefields of France and Belgium and shows the incredible innovation displayed by nurses under challenging and dangerous conditions.
