New owners for Golden Hinde

THE GOLDEN Hinde has returned to her berth in St Mary Overie Dock after being a lead attraction at the Southampton Boat Show.

However, the replica of Sir Francis Drake's ship is due to set sail at least one month per year according to maritime expert Nick Fairhurst who is advising the ship's new owners.

He valued the 1973-built copy of the 16th-century ship and assessed its potential for a theatrical-based education organisation which bought it last month.

The ship has been purchased from Roddy Coleman who had been owner for twenty years during which he took it 140,000 miles around the world. The original ship circumnavigated the world between 1577 and 1580.

New director Katharine Dore will be continuing and updating the educational and entertainment programmes offered on board the ship.

The Golden Hinde is currently applying for charitable status, and the new management plans to concentrate on improvements to facilities for those with disabilities.

Work starts on children's theatre

PLAYWRIGHT SIR Alan Ayckbourn and children from Tower Bridge Primary School took part in the Unicorn Theatre groundbreaking ceremony in Tooley Street.

The Unicorn Theatre for Children is being built in Southwark at a cost of £11.5 million as part of the More London development near City Hall. It is due to be completed in 2005.

Mayor of London Ken Livingstone said: "The Unicorn Theatre is a wonderful project and I am pleased to have been able to help, through the London Development Agency, towards raising the money required to develop it as a world-class theatre for children right in the heart of London.

"The Unicorn encapsulates some of the aims set out in my strategies for culture and for children."

The project will house a 350 seat auditorium, a 120 seat studio theatre, rehearsal space, a café and exhibition space. The architect is Keith Williams.

Among those at the ceremony were patrons Sir John Mortimer and Jeremy Paxman. Sir John's actress daughter Emily Mortimer started the digging surrounded by the children from the nearest school.

London Tonight to leave Upper Ground*LONDON'S REGIONAL news on ITV1 is to leave its well-known South Bank studios when production is taken over by ITN.

The familiar view of St Paul's and the London cityscape will disappear from London Today and London Tonight following the announcement that London News Network's programmes will in future be produced from ITN's Gray's Inn Road headquarters across the river.

Up to 40 jobs are likely to be lost at LNN and ITN. The new London news service is expected to launch in February or March next year.

LNN, now jointly owned by Carlton and Granada, was set up by Carlton and London Weekend Television to provide a seven-day regional news service when Carlton took over the London weekday ITV franchise in 1993.

Previously Thames News had provided a service on weekdays only, with LWT News operating from the South Bank at weekends.

The new London service will retain its own identity but will draw on the newsgathering and technical resources of ITN.

The move comes days after the merger of Carlton and Granada got the go-ahead.

Rumours are circulating in some quarters that ITV plc may seek to dispose of Granada's London base on the South Bank, which it inherited when it took over LWT in the mid-1990s.

020 7403 5411*Boats reprieved*THE HOUSE boats on the Thames opposite New Concordia Wharf near St Saviour's Dock have had an eviction deadline lifted by the Port of London Authority. Two boats had already left before news of the reprieve arrived.

There have been complaints about noise from owners of new flats and the PLA have been acting a Southwark Council decision. A new deadline is expected to be announced shortly.

However, Mayor of London Ken Livingstone wants the barges to stay. "These residential boats add to the diversity of the river and do not harm other residential amenities" says the Mayor.

Drinking ban*WATERLOO, AS the notice on the gates of St John's Church indicates, is now within a Drinking Control Area. Drinking alcohol in a street or a public place is now prohibited. Those failing to comply with the requirements could face a £500 fine.

The law has been introduced by Lambeth Council in consultation with the police following years of problems with street drinkers. The boundary around Waterloo Station is the river, Hatfields, Morley Street and Westminster Bridge Road.

The impact of the Waterloo ban was recently discussed by Borough &amp; Bankside Community Council.

Wicked hearing adjourned

SOUTHWARK COUNCIL is expected to confirm a mid-November date for the resumption of the Wicked Bar and Nightclub licensing hearing.

The Borough club is seeking permission for live sex acts in its Tooley Street premises. The granting of permission could set a precedent for other parts of London.

The hearing was on the second day of a predicted six day hearing. The short sitting heard procedural matters including a demand for Licensing Committee members who hold religious beliefs to step aside. The request was rejected.

Waterloo farewell

DR JANE Freeman, assistant priest at John's Waterloo and director of the South Bank Christian Studies Centre, is leaving to become Vicar of St Bartholomew's, in East Ham. Her final Sunday at Waterloo before leaving for Upton Park is Sunday 16 November when the congregation is saying farewell at a special lunch.

London City Churches drawings and profiles

BANKSIDE PRESS, publishers of in SE1, has published its first book.

London City Churches brings together 41 drawings by Paul Middleton of the City Churches whose spires and towers clustering around St Paul's are such a feature of the view from Bankside. Architect Paul was moved to begin his tour of the City churches in the early 1990s when there appeared to be a brief threat to their future.

The text is by Leigh Hatts who once edited the Corporation of London's City Events publication which was later taken over by the Diocese of London Communications Unit.

Highlighted in the commentary on each church is both the history and the modern role. For example St Michael Paternoster Royal has not only the tomb of Dick Whittington but also houses the Mission to Seafarers which is assisting abandoned sailors who are victims of the Iraq war.

• London City Churches is available from the Southwark Cathedral Shop at £8.99

Union Street tower plan

SOUTHWARK PLANNING Committee is expected to consider an application for a ten-storey building in Union Street opposite the former Royal Mail parcels depot.

The proposed development includes eight live/work units, an underground carpark and a further block on the west side of Ewer Street. The plans, which would involve the demolition of 100 Union Street, are being opposed by residents living opposite in the Church Commissioners flats.

Relief as Blaine stunt ends

LIFE IS returning to normal for residents of Tooley Street and Butler's Wharf following the completion of David Blaine's 44 day stunt in Potter's Fields.

It is estimated that 250,000 people visited Blaine in Potter's Fields, with 10,000 attending the finale.

Cllr Nick Stanton, leader of the council and Riverside ward councillor, has apologised to residents for the disruption the event has caused. Speaking to residents at the Bermondsey community council he said: "I hold my hands up and apologise. If we'd known then what we know now, we would have taken a very different view of this event. We underestimated the numbers expected to visit the site. But since it began we have continued to work hard to rectify the situation."

Local residents endured noise, litter, parking difficulties and antisocial behaviour. Potter's Fields has been the scene of numerous public order incidents during the stunt, and BskyB will be contributing to the costs of policing the event, as well as bringing Potter's Fields back to its pre-Blaine state.

review*Romeo and Juliet at the Young Vic

THE YOUNG Vic has Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet with a twist. The Iceland-based company's production features high-flying trapeze stunts, tumbling, gymnastics and some very unnecessary humour.

There are plenty of comical moments to keep every adult laughing and the Cirque-de-Soleil-esque stunts will leave you in awe. However, there are some duller spots. This is not a performance to take the children to.

The performance may cross the line between humour and blasphemy for many of you immediately prior to the intermission: of course, I mean Jesus. Yes, Jesus Christ himself is in the performance, nursing his wounds, smoking a fag and playing the guitar.

Many of the audience didn't return following the interval. I myself was tempted not to. But this is certainly entertaining

- Romeo and Juliet, a Vesurport production, is at the Young Vic until 8 November.

exhibition
review*The Weather Project at Tate Modern

TATE MODERN'S great Turbine Hall has reopened with a giant sun seen through a mist.

The Weather Project is the fourth commission in the Unilever Series which has given us controversial installations by Louise Bourgeois, Juan Muñoz and Anish Kapoor.

This latest attempt to dominate the Tate Modern entrance is by Olafur Eliasson.

How much the weatherscape will change over the next six months remains to be seen. Will it look different at night and in the deep winter? Has the artist prepared built-in surprises?

One surprise is the vast glass ceiling. This is not as high as it looks if you go up to level five and examine the temporary roof. Indeed half the sun, which you can walk behind, turns out to be a reflection.

The Icelandic artist may not have imported the fungus and duckweed that featured in his Mediated Motion in Austria but he has brought a swirling fog and an occasional orange glow.

Thursday evenings at Calder's in The Cut

A TINY cell of Hope, that's what Calder's is for me and has been these last three years. Humble enough in appearance it represented quality to me. I'm no academic, I'm a v-e-r-y s-l-o-w reader, but I've recognised on Calder's shelves the works of many great thinkers/writers of the Classics, the avant garde, many of whom had paid a high price for their individuality; many poets Ancient and Modern; factual travel books too. All sorts, but all reflecting a view of life as something hugely exciting to be lustily enjoyed and courageously explored.

When Calder's came I'd been living in the area for 22 years and so had endured the stress of what felt like relentless regeneration. I'd long held the view that what the whole area needed – including pessimistic me – was the rebirth of hope. There seemed to be a great need for someone/something to remind us that whilst 'the Old Order Changeth' all was not lost.

Spurred on I next ventured into the world of Calder's Thursday Evenings and so broaden my horizons. These gatherings – wine included – are not only literary occasions though a number of the erudite do regularly make their way there. But so too do others not all impressively knowledgeable and/or articulate. We come together to enjoy ourselves, and John Calder's generous arrangements. Interesting topics and themes (most new to me), great presenters - mainly established actors and/or 'experts' in their field, and a generous dollop of time for questions and comments.

So – if you feel need of a boost – come to Calder's. Nothing ventured nothing gained.

environment
watch*Leathermarket pilot for fuel payment scheme

A NEW scheme to help Southwark residents pay their fuel bills and make people more environmentally aware has been launched by local company Helpco with the support of Southwark Council.

The aim is to reduce the cost of people's gas and electricity bills by in essence forming a club where they pay a fixed amount weekly or monthly. This means that people on lower incomes are not hit by high quarterly bills and in addition are offered the same reduced tariff as direct debit customers pay.

Every month club members also receive a statement that tells them how much energy they have used, its impact on the environment and how to save energy. Helpco can also arrange low cost loans to pay for heating and insulation measures. The repayment is added to the weekly or monthly payment by members.

The scheme is already up and running in six London boroughs including Lambeth.

Helpco is also starting a pilot scheme in Bermondsey's Leathermarket area to replace chargecard meters.

"We need three hundred brave people for this" says Tony Rose, director of Helpco.

New meters will be installed by Helpco which will enable people to prepay for their gas and electricity rather than using a chargecard scheme.

The card scheme has resulted in many people having their electricity cut off and potentially puts elderly and vulnerable people at risk. Helpco's alternative sounds like an excellent idea all round.

southside diary

One day last month SE1 was in the national headlines with the Primates gathering at Lambeth Palace, the new foggy installation at the Tate being revealed and David Blaine about to be released from his box above Potters Fields.

SE1 was the place to be. However, the Daily Telegraph may have its doubts. Given away with every copy in a special offer at newsagents was the Itchy guide to London published "in association with" the Telegraph.

This book about "eating, drinking, shopping and clubbing" in London has no mention of anywhere south of the river.

Names change and one of the most significant is at Waterloo. An advertisement for a concert at St John's describes it as St John's-by-the-IMAX. In fact St John's may be as famous as the new cinema. The church is the centre for numerous events attracting leading figures. The latest big gathering was the service held simultaneously with the opening of the Lambeth conference when prayers were said for an inclusive church.

* * *

This month sees the opening of a Tas Pide restaurant in Farringdon Road. This is a short distance from the north bank branch of Konditor & Cook.

Thursday 6 November*BECKETT'S DANTE AND THE LOBSTER

6.45pm; £4 (conc £2)
The opening story from Samuel Beckett's More Pricks than Kicks is an hilarious picture of student life at Trinity College in Dublin during the 1920s. As one of the author's most self-revealing works, it gives us a fascinating insight into the personality and outlook of the young Beckett. Actor Sean Barratt reads.

Thursday 13 November*THE PEEKSKILL RIOTS

6.45pm; £4 (conc £2)
First of a series about historical events. The hate and race riots at Peekskill in 1949 were whipped up by an hysterical press to stop a Paul Robeson concert. He was an American Football star turned world-famous singer and also an Afro-American Communist. The Peekskill riots helped accelerate the Cold War and the McCarthy witch hunt that persecuted American liberals and intellectuals. John Calder describes the events and how the atmosphere surrounding them reverberates in the current American climate. An actor reads first hand accounts from the writing of Robeson and that of the novelist, screenwriter and fellow blacklisted Howard Fast.
